KHADI UTSAV

INTER COLLEGIATE COMPETITION ON INNOVATIVE PRODUCT DEVELOPMENT

The College of Home Science Nirmala Niketan in Collaboration with IQAC and the Institution's Innovation Council organized "Khadi Utsav" an Intercollegiate competition on Innovation Product Development using Khadi fabric, to commemorate Gandhi Jayanti.

Khadi is a traditional fabric of India which is also known as the freedom fabric. Khadi fabric was associated with the freedom struggle and Swadeshi Movement. With the advent of synthetic fabrics the use of Khadi fabric decreased. Over a period of time Khadi seemed to lose its value among the consumers. The young generation today is not completely aware about the importance of this traditional fabric and the ideology behind it.

The purpose of conducting this competition was to create awareness about the Khadi fabric and also help students create innovative products which can show the diversity of the Khadi fabric.

A total of 9 participants registered for the competition but only 7 participants from various colleges in Mumbai sent their innovative products made out of Khadi fabric.

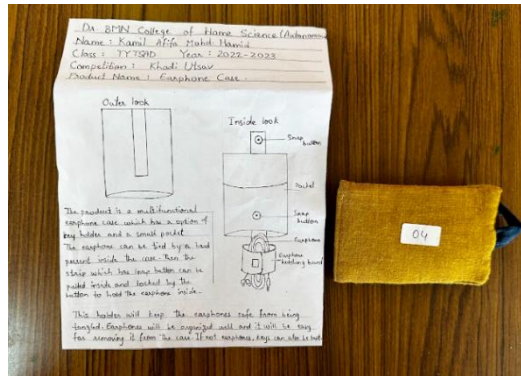

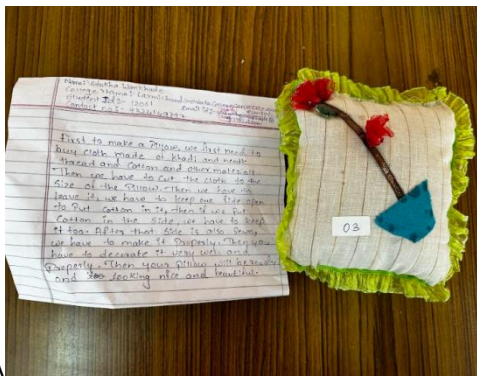

The participants made innovative products out of the Khadi fabric. Students submitted a range of products eg- Garments, accessories, jewellery, stationary products, and home décor products etc. A concept note was submitted with each of the product explaining the details of the product.

The judge of the competition was Dr. Ela Dedhia who has a vast experience in the field of Khadi.
